

Hunter

New York City

Double-digit growth in the past five years is one sign of success for this firm. Another: The numerous employees who lauded the agency leadership’s continued commitment to fostering an inclusive, fun and collaborative environment at all levels.

Judges were impressed with the long tenures of many Hunter staffers. “Hunter has been an amazing place to work for 20 years,” said one employee.

That longevity is a credit to an organization that “places a heavy emphasis on employee happiness and building a community of motivated team members.” Positive energy is a constant at Hunter.

Judges also noted the agency’s consistently high scores across all categories, with no major negatives.

“I was particularly impressed with their creative and collaborative culture that fosters innovation and creativity,” noted one judge.

In the past year, Hunter doubled its office footprint to provide more resources and space for collaboration and a designated workspace for every employee.

“Hunter created new ERGs to make sure vulnerable groups feel safe and heard,” remarked one staffer.
